A B. & M. Train Stopped at Grafton and its Tender Emptied of Coal.

A Fight Between the Citizens and the Train Men.

The coal famine continues to grow worse daily, and extends not alone throughout Nebraska, but also to Kansas, Iowa, Missouri and all the western and northern states, prevailing even in the midst of the great coal producing districts, where there are not men enough to supply the demand from all sides for fuel. In our own state the condition of affairs is becoming quite serious, if we may judge from the following, from yesterday's Lincoln Journal. "The citizens of the little town of judge of their conduct Wednesday When the westward bound train stopped at that place for a few moments, it was boarded by a large business to Metcalf & Bro., of Hamburg, number of citizens, who demanded coal or blood. The train men refused to give up the coal, when the citizens took possession of the tender. and helped themselves to what coal they required. In the melee, we understand, one of the citizens of the town was badly injured. We further understand that one of the train men will be roughly handled to-day should the train stop at that place."

features will be the sketches of the prominent private residences in the city, which last year were crowded out by other buildings. The statistical work, which is the most laborious part of this undertaking will be more complete in detail and more thorough if anything, than in any previous In order that no omissions shall oc-our in this branch, we would urge upon our citizens who have made any building improvements during the year to furnish us the desired information, either at this office or through the postoffice as early as possible. We want the name of the owner of the improvement or structure, discription of the improvement or building In view of of the fact that the outlay for such an undertaking is very large, amounting to nearly $1,500 we have to secure a reasonable amount of advertising patronage from our merchants and manufacturers. Mr. J. H. The reason of this is that the publisher and proprietor, Mr. J. F. McCartney, finds that his duties as city clerk occupy all his time and prevent him from giving that attention to the editorial and business departments of The Home Journal which is neces sary to make it a creditable paper. Anything else he will not publish. On Saturday next the December number makes its appearance, and closes the seventh volume. It will contain a brief history of the paper since its commencement in 1873 and ether matters of interest. It should be understood that the paper does not fail-the publisher merely closing up that branch of his business, preferring as he does, to devote his time to other pursuits. The Gold Coin is this season the favorite of Chicago ed above all other Stoves, comes both plain and hilghly ornamented, has the new patent grate and fire-pot, that will out-wear balf dozen of any other. The Gold Coin weighs more by fitty lbs. than any other Stove of its size in the market, and is, therefore, more durable than any other Stove, is strictly warranted in every respect, it requires no salesman to sell it as city reference sells without trouble.
